  1. South Plains College sends first communications to those students who have completed the FAFSA process for Title IV funds and are Pell Grant eligible. After approximately one week of responses, we send an announcement to all students noting that funds are available.

2. The College adopted a rubric rating for student needs. All students who apply for the CRRSAA grants are asked to complete the online questionnaire and rank needs based on a scale ranging from 1 (I'm good) to 5 (I'm in crisis). Areas of interest include academic support, academic needs for technology and course materials, housing insecurity, utilities, food insecurity, childcare, transportation, healthcare, and mental health care. The student is also given an opportunity to supply documentation and to write a narrative on the need for funds and other resources they have tried to secure. The questionnaire ensures that SPC is providing needed HEERF relief to students with need, as well as connecting the student to additional institutional and community resources. Requested data is maintained through the Maxient system.
